Extended Producer Responsibility

Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR), also referred to as Product Stewardship, is a strategy to place a shared responsibility for end-of-life product management on producers. The Used Mattress Recovery & Recycling Act (Senate Bill [SB] 254, established in 2013 and updated in SB 1294 in 2014) is an EPR requirement that mattress manufacturers develop and implement a convenient and cost-effective program to recover and recycle used mattresses to reduce costs and environmental impacts on their disposal in California.

California's Used Mattress Recovery and Recycling Program

Enforcement Overview

Used Mattress Recovery and Recycling Program Overview

California has established an industry-run, statewide program to increase education, recovery, and recycling of used mattresses and box springs (foundations). The program requires that a mattress stewardship organization be formed to comply with the law. Currently, the Mattress Recycling Council (MRC), a 501(c)(3) organization created by the International Sleep Products Association, is the only recognized mattress stewardship organization representing mattress manufacturers in California.

Enforcement

CalRecycle provides enforcement oversight of the mattress stewardship law. CalRecycle evaluates compliance through various means including, but not limited to, inspections. Reasonable and timely access to facilities shall be provided under the mattress law.

Failure to comply with requirements of the law, and/or submitting false or misleading information may result in penalties of up to $5,000 per day.

See details about the mattress stewardship law and monitor CalRecycle's website for product compliance at: www.calrecycle.ca.gov/mattresses

- Name of the mattress manufacturer.
- Date the mattress was purchased from the manufacturer.
- Date the mattress was sold to the consumer or other buyer.
- Documentation of registration and fee remittance with the MRC

Monitor Website for Product Compliance

Retailers that sell mattresses and box springs to an end-user in California are required to monitor CalRecycle's website to determine if the sale of these products is in compliance with the law. CalRecycle's website maintains a listing of compliant manufacturers that are registered and approved for sale in California.

Recycle Fee

Mattress retailers are required by law to charge a recycling fee on mattress unit sales to consumers and to remit the collected fees to the MRC on a monthly basis. The fees, set by the MRC and approved by CalRecycle, fund the California mattress stewardship program.
