

I share the concern about larger communities having an inherent advantage under the GHG reductions criterion. I would propose that the criterion be weighted; i.e., GHG reductions per capita, or GHG reductions as a percentage of total potential reductions derived from a given community or geographical area (waste shed).

Thank you for your consideration!

-Juliette Bohn